meals.

This year will be the first time in the history of the matches that civilian clubs will be able to compete to such a great extent as planned in a national match. These matches usually have been confined to military organizations, with a small sprinkling of civilian shooters. This year, however, ah invitation has been extended to the governors of all states to send one civilian team in addition to the militia, team, and transportation will be furnished.

The state camp range in Florida, where the matches will be held, is one of the finest in the country. The entire reservation consists of 1,078 acres, of which the range proper occupies about 104 acres. There are three large ranges, for 1,000, 600 and 200 yards, respectively. The latter range also is used for pistol shooting. all pledges upon which the interest is over-up to this date. Ticket holders kindly take shooting.

site are perfect. Fresh water is sup-plied from an artesian well, and there is an ample sewage system. The camp site will accommodate a full brigade. site will accommodate a full brigade. Trains run through the reservation to the reservation station.

The teams from the District will leave October 9, in order to take part in the preliminary practice, which will begin on October 11. Full information regarding the matches may be obtained from bulletin 6 of the War Department. or from the National Rifle Association, 1108 Woodward building.

Market Range Scores.

High scores featured the reopening week of the Eastern market indoor range last week. The range opened Saturday a week ago, and on the first day it was crowded to capacity through the day. During the past week it has accommodated big crowds every night. Corporal Martin A. McGrory, U. S. M. C., is again

Promoted to the rank of ensign and directly afterward to that of lieutenant, he served with honor for five years, and until involved in a scandal touching the smuggling of negroes from Florida into the United States. Resigning his commission and demanding an investigation of his conduct, he was fully exonerated, but instead of returning to the army studied law at Nashville, and was admitted to the bar. Thereafter he made a rapid climb of the ladder that leads to the seats of the mighty. He became district attorney and member

In this conference he was elected commander-in-chief of the army of Texas and immediately began to weave the scattered population into an efficient military organization. He was a member of the convention that adopted a declaration of independence for Texas, and when the Mexicans crossed the line and executed Davy Crockett, Bowle, Travis and others, Houston, with only 750 men, met the strong army of Santa Anna and within an hour killed half of this number, making prisoners of those that remained.

As a reward he was chosen first president of the republic of Texas, and at the end of his term left the government in an excellent condition—at ANTERIOR STATE Within only a few weeks after the wedding he astounded his myriad admirers by suddenly separating from his bride without a word of explanation beyond the statement that the cause of his act in no manner reflected upon that excellent lady's character. Up to that time sure of reelection, he abdicated the power that his commonwealth was about to confer upon him, and, disguising nimself, secretly left Nashville, making his way up the Arkansas river to the mouth of secretly left Nashville, making his way up the Arkansas river to the mouth of the Illinois, where he joined the Cherokee tribe, leaving his party followers in a state of turbulence, and thus escaping the storm of vituperation that Tennesseeans were heaping upon his head. He remained in the wilderness, adopting the Indian costume and customs. He let his hair grow down his back, donned the buckskin hunting shirt and yellow leggins of the red man, threw a blanket about his shoulders and crowned his head with turkey feathers.
